

ready for a reboot?

Restarting your desktop when you need it.

Everyone needs a reminder to reset every now and then.

These days, our lives are so busy that it's often easier to set reminders for ourselves so that we don't forget the big ticket items. Just like you, your Windows system has some regular maintenance needs, but with my help those needs won't become another thing for you to remember to do.

Now that we've gotten to know each other a little, I've made some adjustments.

I'll still be checking in with you when it looks like your system could use a reboot, but if the initial date and time that I recommend don't work for you, you'll now be able to schedule that reboot for yourself at the time that is most convenient for you.

All you have to do is send me a text following the provided format, and I'll take care of it!
